Ground will be broken June 2 for construction of a two-story brick professional building to be located at 15 Central St.

Trustees of Central Realty Trust announced today that at least half the space in the 8,000 square foot office building is already committed. Most of the tenants will be professional people.

Principals in the trust are Atty. Roland H. Sherman of North Andover, a former Andover town moderator, and Dr. Edward S. Miller, Dr. James W. Skillings, Atty. Thomas W. Tavenner and Dr. Calvin Perry, all of Andover.

It is estimated the Colonial-styled building will cost in excess of $100,000. A parking lot will be laid out at the rear of the property. Occupancy is planned for December 1.

Tax Rate Set At $34, Up $1

At Townsman presstime Wednesday it was learned that the Andover tax rate for 1965 has been set at $34, up $1 as predicted after Town Meeting approved a $5.4 million budget in March.

Both town and school segments of the budget are up, but the way the state has figured the rate this

Killorin Property Town Meeting Issue

EARLY COPY

Think ahead and have news for next week's Townsman in Friday or Saturday of this week, if you can. Our offices will be closed Monday, but the paper will be out on Thursday as usual.

Bowen Warns Water Scarce

In what is probably the fore-runner to restrictions, Town Manager Richard Bowen issued a statement yesterday urging residents to cut down on their use of the town's water supply.

On the heels of a day when water usage hit the 4 million mark, abnormally high for this time of year, Bowen said, "It has now come to pass that the citizens of Andover be asked to take some reasonable and judicious steps in order to conserve water."

Water Supt. Donald C. Bassett expressed his concern over the situation Tuesday, stating that Haggitt's Pond started to drop May 15 after a gradual spring increase in the level.

The balance of Bowen's statement spelled out the reasons for their alarm:

"As the combined results of a sustained heavy usage of water over the past two years and the limited rainfall during the same period, we find that our water supply is presently at an extremely low level. We do not anticipate sufficient rainfall in the immediate future to be able to make up present deficiencies.

Bowen warned that the failure of citizens to use "collective good judgment" could make it necessary to impose restrictions. This, he said, "we would prefer using only as last resort."

He requested townspeople to let their cars stay dirty a week longer than usual, to hand water lawns, and in general to be more conscious of water usage.

There will be a special Town Meeting Monday, June 21, to put the question of purchase of the Killorin property at 77 Main St. before the voters.

The location, adjacent to the municipal parking lot, is sought as an addition to the proposed site for the new town hall which was voted at the March Town Meeting. The Selectmen will ask voters to approve its acquisition (probably for $50,000) either by purchase or the right of eminent domain. A check of assessor's records shows that the land and converted home on it are jointly valued at $41,400.

The meeting, called by the Board of Selectmen, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in the Junior High School auditorium, Chairman Philip K. Allen said in making the long-anticipated announcement.

If the question of site is cleared up at Town Meeting, plans for the new $700,000 municipal office complex and police station can go forward. Manager Richard Bowen said this week that he has talked to a number of architectural firms about the project, but that he would not make a definite commitment until the site was firm. Both the shape of the building and the number of floors are dependent upon the size and shape of the lot, Bowen said.

There is still talk of other locations for the hall, and as late as this week alternate proposals were being made. The Board of Selectmen showed an early preference for the parking lot site, despite protests from merchants that it

South End Population Forces Fall Transfers

So far there have only been scattered objections to the School Committee's decision to move two of the three sixth grades at South School into Stowe School for the 1965-66 term.

Both Supt. Edward L. Erickson and Principal Earl Simon said this week that they have had calls from a few parents who protest this solution to the crowded situation at South. Simon admits that he expects at least more inquiry about the plan than he has had so far.

The committee acted upon a recommendation given reluctantly by Supt. Erickson and in spite of a strongly worded objection from Catherine M. Barrett, principal at Central School.

Erickson had earlier told the committee that he favored enlarging classes at South rather than transporting children to another location, but the policy group rejected any proposal that would push class enrollments there to 40 more. They asked for an alternative. Erickson favored bussing sixth graders to one location rather than splitting them between Sanborn and Stowe schools, and recommended this approach last week.

Prior to the vote, the committee listened to a statement detailing Miss Barrett's objections to any move that would further congest Central School.

Barrett Objections

Complaining that students at Jackson School as well as those now at Stowe depend upon the Central library, cafeteria and auditorium, Miss Barrett said she thought the committee should spend a "great deal of effort" in trying to vacate Stowe rather than enlarge its enrollment. At present two sixth grades classes, affiliated with Central occupy the building.

"I honestly feel," she said, "that the building is hygienically unsound and does not lend itself to sound educational procedures."

Supv. of General Services Jack Berberian said this week, however, that Stowe passes the same inspection given other schools in the system by the State Department of Public Safety. This is, he points out, primarily a fire safety inspection.

The local Board of Health's only involvement with schools is through its inspection of cafeteria facilities, and there is none at Stowe. The establishing and maintaining of other standards is a School Department job.

In detailing her arguments, Principal Barrett said the heat at the older school fluctuates so that students on occasion have to wear their outer clothing in the classroom or move into the Central auditorium to get warm.

Among her other objections:

- It will add from one hour to one hour and 10 minutes to the Central cafeteria time if 60 additional students must eat there.
- There are no lockers or other facilities for hanging up wraps of Stowe children using Central core services.

- Central's enrollment is now 652 and the building was built to be adequate for 500.

- Sixth graders should not be divorced from their own school during the year of their final assemblies, parties, ball games etc. (She favored moving fourth graders, if any were to be transplanted). Also, giving a principal new sixth graders gives him little opportunity to get to know them.

Building Drafty

In presenting her arguments against additional use of Stowe, Miss Barrett pointed out that the building is drafty, that lavatories are in the basement and the plumbing is poor, that the building has no teachers' room or any place for the care of sick or accident cases and that the bubblers are located in the same sinks where children wash their hands.

Andover Student Gordon Graduate

Mrs. Elinor S. Griffin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank B. Sarrucco, 51 Juniper Rd., graduated April 10, from Gordon College, Wenham.

Mrs. Griffin, a French and Spanish major, will teach high school French in the fall.

Berberian reports that it is true there is no thermostatic control at Stowe, which was built in 1895, and that the heat does fluctuate. But no major revamping of the heating system is contemplated because, the department hopes to abandon the building, the supervisor said, when the town builds its sixth elementary school in about two years. Then a redistricting would shift some population from the Central School district and eliminate the need for further use of Stowe.

The older building also served as an overflow school when West end population soared prior to construction of the new school in that part of town.

The School Committee has told Manager Richard Bowen that it will be ready with educational specs for a new elementary school by November, and Bowen foresees consideration of plans at the next regular Town Meeting. He has asked the committee to explore the money-saving possibility of re-using the plans drawn for Sanborn School.

Fish Die-Offs On Up Swing

William A. Tompkins, chief aquatic biologist for the state Division of Fisheries and Game, says that the public may expect more die-offs of fish in Massachusetts waters this spring.

Tompkins presently has a dozen such fish kills his staff is investigating and expects more. He said that die-offs in streams would not ordinarily be a problem of such magnitude at this time of the year if sufficient runoff were available to keep streams diluted. However, pollution in a number of Bay State streams is not being sufficiently diluted by spring runoff normally available at this time, and may continue to be a problem unless sufficient rain is forthcoming.

"If our streams were in their former pristine condition," Tompkins said, "the dilution factor would not be a problem of such proportions. However, industrial and domestic pollution prevalent in many of our streams has a chance to hit fish populations extremely hard this year. We can't do anything about more rain, but cleaning up our streams would help considerably."

A small number of fish die-offs are experienced every year as waters warm up, but the situation is magnified this year because of low water levels, he adds.

Passive Discrimination Said Widespread Here

Passive discrimination against Negroes is widespread in Andover, even though opportunities for overt discrimination are limited.

This is the conclusion of a committee investigating local fair housing practices for Andover Citizens for Equal Opportunity.

On the eve of its first anniversary, this equal rights group (abbreviated AC/O) has printed for members and other interested citizens a booklet which summarizes its brief history, its aims, progress and findings.

Reporting that there are only 20 Negro families living in Andover, the organization's housing committee adds this statement to its conclusion that discrimination exists: "There is little evidence to support the supposition that Andover is free from racial intolerance and no justification for indifference or complacency on this matter on the part of Andover residents of good will."

The committee also reports, however, that though five local homes were listed with Fair Housing Inc. over the past year, none was sold through this clearing house which seeks homes for Negroes in Boston suburbs. Added is the fact that two Negro families did move into the community within the year without "marked difficulties."

The booklet, reports that a Boston Real Estate Board speaker told the membership earlier this year that relatively few Negroes now seek homes in suburbs this far from Boston. "This provides an excellent opportunity for realtors and interested people in the community to work together now to prepare a climate of acceptance for the future," the organization concludes.

In the area of education, AC/O has been active with Lawrence's Community Council for Civic Betterment in the formation of Wide Horizons projects, a tutoring program in Lawrence and a pilot head-start pre-school held at Free Church for 12 culturally deprived youngsters.

Andover is fairly insulated from the sort of unfair employment practices which are a problem in major cities, according to the observations of the AC/O committee studying this phase of civil rights. The town's largest employers have "sincere programs" for equal employment, and smaller industrial firms and retailers have relatively few opportunities and few applicants the committee says.

Describing its interest in other than strictly local race relations problems, the organization says it intends to keep members informed about the civil rights movement in general, to follow legislation affecting it and to establish some contact between Andover and the "inner city" where "the problem is obviously more acute."

The group reports it has worked with CCCB, Fair Housing Inc. and the Massachusetts Commission Against Discrimination in four instances since January to correct violations of the law in Lawrence where it is known that Negroes sought and were denied rental housing outside one of the two "well defined" areas where most of the neighboring community's 250 non-white families live.

In a further extension of its local drive for fair housing, AC/O says that so far 425 of the Good Neighbor pledges distributed throughout Andover precincts have been signed. The pledge commits individuals to welcoming people into their neighborhoods without discrimination because of race, religion or national origin. Copies of the new booklet in effect, AC/O's annual report, are available from members of the organization or may be seen at Memorial Hall Library.

WEST GIRL SCOUTS

Fifteen members of Girl Scout Troop #94, West Parish Church, took a camping trip at the Girl Scout Camping Area at Nantucket last weekend.

They went by car to Woods Hole, and then by ferry to Nantucket where they camped out in round-up tents. They used bicycles on the island.

Robin's Life
Lecture Topic

The Ipswich River Audubon Club will meet at the Ipswich River Wildlife Sanctuary in Topsfield, off Rt. 97 Monday, June 7 at 7:45 p.m. for a talk by Mrs. Deborah Howard of West Newton on her particular field of study - Robins.

Although everyone knows the robin, few know much except that he eats worms and lays blue-green eggs. Deborah Howard, a volunteer research associate on the Massachusetts Audubon Society staff, is however, in her second year of intensive study of this familiar member of the thrush family.

With the aid of a mirror she has been able to study the robin in its nest and will share what she has learned with her audience. The National Honors Science Society, Sigma Xi, has given her a grant to carry on her work this summer. The public is invited to hear her lecture. There is a small fee.

June 12 is the date of the last high-school-age field trip sponsored by the Massachusetts Audubon Society. Students will meet at the Howard Johnson's on Route 1, Lynnfield, at 8 a.m. Registrations must be made by June 10.

Protestant Laymen Meet With Catholics

Two local Protestant churches were involved in interfaith exchanges with St. Augustine's Church Sunday, one sending visitors to and the other receiving visitors from the local Catholic church.

Members from Ballard Vale United Church met with a clergyman at St. Augustine's to hear an explanation of the significance and history of the Mass. Robert King then discussed the theory and practice of penance or confession. Six discussion groups later met with the following St. Augustine leaders: John McAllister, Joseph Walsh, John F. Lyons, Raymond Deck, Estelle Dumont and Lee Wesolowski.

A question and answer session and refreshments, served by Mrs. Joseph Walsh and Mrs. John McAllister, followed.

At Free Christian Church, St. Augustine visitors were taken on a tour and then divided for group lectures on Protestant attitudes toward worship and communion as well as various phases of Congregationalism.

Speakers were Dr. and Mrs. Norman Rockwood, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Downs, Miss Mary Angus, Miss Harriet Newman, Mr. and Mrs. John Graham and Mrs. Meredith Russell.

Guides for the tour were Mr. and Mrs. Lester Newill, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bedell, Mrs. Margaret Conkey and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Klockow. Delfar Grant, chairman, introduced participating laymen.

The group reassembled for an open discussion led by Frederick Fitzgerald and refreshments served by a committee headed by Mrs. Newill.

In announcing the essayists, Principal Philip Wormwood also released the schedule of graduation events, including Senior Chapel at 8:15 a.m. June 4 and Class Day, a trip to Allen A. Ranch, Wolfeboro, N. H., which is set for June 7.

Subjects for the graduation essays have not been announced, but the following biographical information details the background of the five speakers:

She represented the school on Student Government Day, won a French medal in the Eastern Massachusetts District in 1964, was a national merit scholarship finalist and winner of a National Science Foundation science study scholarship. She expects to work at Boston's University Hospital this summer and enroll at the University of Chicago next fall.

A Grand Old Flag

There must be many who recall wistfully the time when Americans were extravagant with their affection for the USA — when George M. Cohan could set feet tapping with his vigorous "rendition" of "It's A Grand Old Flag."

But America has aged, Americans are more sophisticated and they have been cruelly reminded by two major wars that it takes more than cocky self assurance to make a nation strong enough for international leadership.

The fact that we are more mature as a nation — mature enough to know that the USA isn't infallible — is frequently offered as an excuse for the many Americans who are self conscious about any display of feeling for our country.

It may be an explanation, but it can scarcely be considered an adequate excuse.

The young people of our state have been so blatant in their disregard for the flag that Commissioner of Education Owen B. Kiernan moved last January to inspire both a Commonwealth and national campaign to rekindle a "deep and abiding respect for this nation's flag."

Starting in his own backyard, Kiernan sent a memo to school superintendents urging educators to rededicate themselves to the "goal of service to God and country."

"Children and youth must be taught and given opportunity to practice the values which a democratic society holds dear. . . . Whether it is in reciting the pledge of allegiance, in reading of its inspirational history, or in knowing correct flag etiquette, each student must have a full knowledge and a fervent desire to apply it."

Monday a relative handful of those Americans whose history is linked to that of the Grand Army of the Republic (certain Southern states do not participate in this observance which dates to the end of the Civil War), will cluster around cannons and monuments and graves to pay homage to the dead of our wars.

Most of them will be very conscious of the values for which these men died, and this will be reflected in their attitude toward the flag.

But there will be onlookers who display no respect at all. And elsewhere, most Americans will cut grass, and boat and picnic and sunbathe without a moment's thought for the flag or the institutions it symbolizes.

Given a generation, the sort of campaign Commissioner Kiernan has mounted could eradicate such insensitive citizens. But will it if there is a perpetual tug between what our young people practice at school and observe at holiday parades?

Adult Americans who believe in what our flag is meant to represent should show it, unabashedly, before disrespect for the symbol becomes as a cancer infecting the whole body of our belief in a democratic form of government.

Begin with Memorial Day.

Spring Chuckles

When spring comes to Andover, rumors seem to sprout as profusely as annuals.

How about this latest crop?

Andover's police will soon be wearing green uniforms, cowboy hats and leather leggings.

The Ballardvale fire station is going to be a startling, shocking pink.

And the Fire Department has ordered a trend-setting yellow truck.

Maybe it's a mixed blessing that rumors run wild — policemen garbed in green, riding around in the town's two new pale blue vehicles would provide a color scheme which in itself could prove a deterrent to crime.

The truth of it is, for those who cannot abide suspense: The police are to have new summer weight uniforms that, apart from a stripe on the pants, will be the spittin' image of their familiar blues. New will be straw hats, trooper style.

The Ballardvale fire station is being primed (with pink) for a deep red paint job.

And, though the town plans eventually to have nothing but yellow DPW equipment, it has ordered a fire truck that will look just like every toddler thinks a genuine fire truck should look.

Too bad. The rumors were so much more colorful.

Down the Years with The Townsman

75 Years Ago — May, 1890

The farm of the late Bailey Lovejoy in West Parish is now occupied by Capt. John Bartlett, for sometime a chief of the Fire Department in Boston.

William Marland, son of the late John Marland, formerly of this town was drowned at Braintree Tuesday May 22nd, by the upsetting of a boat.

Although "Uncle Sam" Beandisposed of one tally-ho, he still has another, which he has had painted and which now presents a good appearance. He has also a new four-seated wagon which is very convenient for small parties and families and which will just suit a number of Sam's patrons.

Prof. W. H. Ryder of this town spoke at Ladies Night in Music Hall Boston on the Negro Question: "Speaking seriously, he said that the negro question was fast settling itself by the education of the race and the gradual acquisition of property by its individuals. All that it needed was a judicious letting alone. The negro in the war was no better soldier than his white brother, and in that connection it was just as well to forget him as a negro and remember him only as a hero and patriot. More than to the fighting qualities of the negro was success in the war due to the capability for patient waiting . . . to the patient faithfulness of the negro, should all honor be paid."

50 Years Ago — May, 1915

St. Augustine's Church was peculiarly honored last Sunday morning with a large congregation and a number of especially distinguished and well-known clergy, the occasion being the celebration of Rev. Fr. Daniel W. Driscoll's first mass since being ordained into the priesthood.

The settees in the park near the "Centennial elm" have been fastened down, the work being done by Hardy & Cole under the direction of the Board of Public Works.

The Phillips Andover debating team was victorious over Exeter in the tenth annual debate which was held in the Stone chapel on last Sunday evening. The question for debate was: Resolved, that in the light of the situation as known to Germany prior to the first of August, the action of Germany in declaring war against Russia was expedient. The affirmative was argued by Andover and Exeter upheld the negative. This was the first joint debate won by Andover in nine years. Quiet, persistent and consistent plugging has been done by Mr. Stott, who has charge of this work, ever since he came to Phillips in 1911, and the plugging has at last counted.

25 Years Ago — May, 1940

Alexander Campbell was elected president of the Andover Male Choir on Tuesday. Other officers elected were first vice president, Leverett N. Putnam; second vice president, George Walton; secretary, Clinton H. Stevens; treasurer, George B. Petrie, librarian, David Reynolds; assistant librarian, John B. Collins; conductor J. Everett Collins; pianist, Marion L. Abbott.

Blue ribbons were awarded Dorothy Abbott, Marilyn Lewis and Marjorie Crosby for dresses exhibited at the annual dress revue of the Essex County 4-H Club.

John M. MacKenzie is president of the Young Men's Republican Club.

10 Years Ago — May, 1955

The planning board has retained an engineer and planning consultant to begin master plan studies for the town. The work will cost approximately $5,500. Engineer Clinton F. Goodwin of Haverhill was hired by the board; the planning consultant is Nord W. Davis of Shirley Center.

Scout Troop 73 of South Church won a permanent trophy for best display of "Good Camping" abilities at the Camp-O-Ree at Sidney P. White's farm last weekend.

Wallace E. Brimer, 3 Orchard St., has been elected president and treasurer of Tyer Rubber Co. by the board of directors and stockholders at the annual meeting of the concern.

Social Issue Subject Of Winning HS Essay

Miss Christine Prendergast, a junior at Andover High School, was the winner of the 67th Barnard Essay contest held earlier this month.

Reprinted is the text of her entry:

Selma Where The Pavement Ends

In Selma, Alabama, the streets are paved up to a certain point; but when the houses become shabby and skin color changes from white to black, the pavement abruptly ends.

The concrete pavement of white supremacy was shattered in Selma.

He knew he was in Selma's Negro section when he saw the muddy street. In the dusk, the Negro children were playing marbles, and three old Negro men were rocking on a sagging, weather-beaten porch. As his cavalcade of two buses and two cars, all ministers and theological students, slowly lumbered down the street, the children looked up from their game, cheered wildly, and raced forward to meet them. One little girl hugged him around his knees and said, "Thank you, thank you, sir, for comin'." On the porch, the old men waved happily, as the tears coursed down their cheeks. All this brought much gladness to his heart.

He was weary from travel and wanted to rest. The children and their parents gestured toward the church; there he and his friends would sleep. With his bed roll slung over his shoulder, he walked in and looked for a place to lie down. The church was old, bare, and crowded, but he finally found a space in the chancel. He was lucky; it was the only place with a rug.

Then the many little boys and girls, each one clutching a blanket, crept silently into the church. He suddenly realized that this was where they slept — on the hard, wooden pews, so that the girls in his group could sleep on beds. These people have borne so much poverty and oppression, he thought, and still they sacrifice themselves — and what little comfort they have — for others.

In the church kitchen women were cooking food day and night. Anytime a friend was hungry, he was served gladly. They wouldn't accept payment, although they must have needed it, because they were so grateful for the "white folks" coming to help them in their struggle.

His group attempted to cross onto the paved streets of Selma to talk with the white Southerners; to show them that the Negroes' fight was a legitimate fight; to convince them that by denying the Negro his humanity, they were slowly crushing their own humanity.

Then someone yelled, "Hey! You white Nigger!"

It was his proudest moment. There is a sign in Selma which says:

Selma: The City of 100% Human Interest

He never stopped trying to talk with them, but the white Southerners would not listen to a

Bronzes and drawings by the sculptor Katharine Lane Weems, new gifts to the Boston Museum of Science, are on display there in a special gallery. Included are 25 of some 40 bronzes ranging in size from a tiny bear cub two inches high to a large pair of Afghan hounds. The artist, Boston accent. He sensed that they wanted to ignore the strife and that they were bitter about the "Northern agitators" who had come to Selma and disturbed their peaceful existence. A sign at the city limits distinctly shouted how they felt:

The White Citizens of Selma Welcome You

Help Keep Racial Purity and the American Way of Life

He pitied them. They were so trapped by their own fear and hatred that they couldn't see the grace and courage in their own Negro community.

And so, what he couldn't say with words he said with his body. The Negroes were on their march for freedom, their quest for freedom — freedom — although some of them could barely spell it.

It is freedom and understanding that they are searching for, and the demonstration is their way of acting out their need. By using non-violent tactics, they try to show the white man that he has no cause to fear, that the Negro does not seek revenge, only peace. On the morning when he joined in silent procession to the Dallas County Courthouse, this human dignity was the spirit of the march.

The Negroes in Selma live in poverty, in danger, and among hatred, but they live their lives emotionally. They understand that the soul alive with love and good will is greater than the well being of the body. After being clubbed, one man said, "What else can they do to me? My soul is free."

In that silent procession he found the meaning of sacrifice. He lifted arms and marched with a young Negro woman. Her husband is in Vietnam.

He saw the meaning of love in Selma — a Negro leading a blind white man.

He saw pain, and through pain, strength — Jim Letherer, a one-legged man who marched the fifty-four miles to Montgomery. And he saw a miracle. A white boy, who had been raised in Selma and was living in Washington, became so angered by the unwarranted brutality that he came home. He crossed the human barrier of prejudice and brought his sleeping bag into the Negro community.

The aim in Selma is not wholly a voting bill or total integration. The aim is a community of Christian love in which people are accepted as people, not as colors. Now that the national spotlight is dimmed, he wonders what is happening to his brothers in Selma. The support is no longer there, but the prejudice and hate remain. Yet he believes the human forgiveness and deep faith of the Negroes will lead them to their freedom.

The pavement ends in Selma. The smooth surface of our complacency, our apathy, and our non-involvement has been shocked by the violence and the struggle. The only way from Selma is forward. The forward road is not level; it is not straight; and it is not paved. But it is forward. With courage, and effort, and love, we shall overcome.

show the white man that he has no cause to fear, that the Negro does not seek revenge, only peace. On the morning when he joined in silent procession to the Dallas County Courthouse, this human dignity was the spirit of the march.

The Negroes in Selma live in poverty, in danger, and among hatred, but they live their lives emotionally. They understand that the soul alive with love and good will is greater than the well being of the body. After being clubbed, one man said, "What else can they do to me? My soul is free."

In that silent procession he found the meaning of sacrifice. He linked arms and marched with a young Negro woman. Her husband is in Vietnam.

He saw the meaning of love in Selma - a Negro leading a blind white man.

He saw pain, and through pain, strength - Jim Letherer, a one-legged man who marched the fifty-four miles to Montgomery.

And he saw a miracle. A white boy, who had been raised in Selma and was living in Washington, became so angered by the unwarranted brutality that he came home. He crossed the human barrier of prejudice and brought his sleeping bag into the Negro community.

The aim in Selma is not wholly a voting bill or total integration.
The aim is a community of Christian love in which people are accepted as people, not as colors.
Now that the national spotlight is dimmed, he wonders what is happening to his brothers in Selma.
The support is no longer there,
but the prejudice and hate remain.
Yet he believes the human forgiveness and deep faith of the Negroes will lead them to their freedom.

The pavement ends in Selma.
The smooth surface of our complacency, our apathy, and our non-involvement has been shocked by the violence and the struggle. The only way from Selma is forward.

The forward road is not level;
it is not straight; and it is not paved. But it is forward. With courage, and effort, and love, we shall overcome.

Going Away?

If you are thinking of selecting literature on display in the lobby of the library? Additional camping information may also be obtained in the Main Reading Room. If you do not see what you need, feel free to ask for catalogs, camp direcwegian folk tale with Norwegian Ballet; SKYSCRAPER, from blue-said this week.

One hundred and eight students will attend four-year degree-granting institutions in 19 states and the District of Columbia. And 20 percent of the class, or 48 students, will enroll at junior colleges, business, technical or professional schools.

Forty-two of the seniors plan to take full-time jobs upon graduation, Igoe said. Seventeen have already been promised employment. To complete the breakdown, nine will attend prep schools or do post graduate work at AHS; eight boys will serve in the Armed Forces; and six will receive diplomas in late summer after meeting graduation requirements.

Igoe reports that this year's class netted 50 percent less in scholarships than last year's: fourteen students will receive education aid in the amount of $40,050, a figure which excludes local scholarship which will be announced at the June 11 graduation. would eliminate much-needed downtown parking. The Board has not yet, however, been formally offered an alternative that it considers practical.

Karl C. Killorin, owner of the location to be sought, has a building permit to make improvements to the former residential property which would include adding a store front as part of an expansion, but work is not yet underway. He currently uses a portion of the building for his real estate business.

The Warrant will open today and close June 4. So far, the Selectmen plan to ask consideration of just three other articles: one seeking authorization to request an interest-free federal loan to cover the cost of plans and specs for a new elementary school; one to accept a drainage easement on a piece of Lowell St. property recently transferred by Dr. Richard Lindsey; and one to waive an easement over a portion of Rogers Brook pipe laid underneath property owned by Jaycole Realty Corp. on Main St. The town can have access to the pipe through a manhole.

TAX RATE GOING UP $1.

year leaves the impression that the School Department has actually shaved its expenditures.

Sixteen dollars and thirty cents of the rate has been attributed to the school side of the ledger and $17.70 to the general or town budget. The school share of last year's rate was $17.47 and the town's $15.53.

The reason for the striking paper differential is that because the town voted to reduce the tax rate in a lump sum taken from surplus instead of passing a multitude of special articles drawn on the general fund, the state has split the lump sum down the middle and applied half of it to each side of the ledger. It is a question of state bookkeeping.

Adjusted figures, which reflect the relative positions on the same basis as the rate was determined last year show that the town's share of the 1965 tax rate is $15.54, up just one cent, while the school's share of the rate is $17.46.

What the American Public Should Expect from a Funeral Director

Dedicated to the Public Interest

Full Disclosure of Costs

The public should always have available in time of need or in advance full information about funeral prices and services. The funeral director serves the public interest best when he provides such information openly and freely.

Assurance of Dignity and Quality

The quality of services provided by a funeral director dedicated to public service is not priced according to "ability to pay." His services are priced to fit every pocketbook. The prices quoted (with the exception of cemetery charges, flowers, etc.) include the services of the funeral director and his staff, use of all the facilities of the funeral home, and the casket selected.

Full Responsibility for Arrangements

All members of National Selected Morticians must maintain a complete funeral establishment . . . designed and equipped for funeral service . . . including a selection room from which a family can choose the service it desires. Prices must be plainly marked. A trained staff must be available. A complete establishment is an assurance of reliability and dependability.

Respect for Religious Beliefs and Customs

Only by having full respect for the religious beliefs and customs of those he serves can a funeral director fulfill his obligations to the public. He seeks in every way to work under the direction of the clergy and the bereaved family in making a funeral a meaningful religious rite.

These principles have been adopted by every member of National Selected Morticians and are the guiding creed of his service to the public.

For The Elderly

Especially geared to the care, of senior citizens is the Halcyon House Rest Home, 175 Berkeley Street, Methuen. And because rates at the Halcyon House are geared to the ambulatory elderly, rates are pleasantly modest. Good food and no expense is spared to insure the best food, well-prepared and pleasantly served. Large comfortable, bright rooms set in a country-like atmosphere further enhance this pleasant spot. Yet, Halcyon House is right on a bus line and is convenient to most areas. You are invited to visit the Halcyon House Rest Home and inspect the facilities. You'll be made welcome. And you'll be delighted with this pleasant, well-run rest home.

SORRY, TIMMY!

In last week's feature story on this page covering the T. J. Scanlon Company and its upcoming 20th Anniversary, our "Who's Who" writer stated that Mr. and Mrs. Timothy J. Scanlon were parents of two sons and a daughter. The story completely overlooked a third son, Timothy J. Scanlon, Jr., who is 13 years old, is in the 7th grade at St. Augustine's school, has graduated from little league baseball and is very much on the scene. The Townsman's lapse came on a missed signal between interviewer and re-writer. We are sorry, Timmy, and hope you'll understand.

Church Will Ordain Woman

Miss Emily Preston, 25, youth director at Free Christian Church, will be ordained as a Christian Minister in services at the church June 20 at 7:30 p.m. She will be the first woman invested at the local church.

A native of New York City, Miss Preston has been associated with Free Church for three years. She was examined there May 25 on her qualifications with Rev. J. Allyn Bradford and one other delegate appearing as representatives of the church.

Miss Preston attended Boston elementary schools, St. Timothy's School in Baltimore, Md., Bradford Junior College and graduated from Boston University in 1961. She studied theology at William Temple College, Rugby, England, for a year and will graduate from Andover Newton Theological School in 1966.

The young minister will spend her intern year at Garrison Forest School, Garrison, Md. where she will teach, counsel and preach.

Most of the worry a man has in this world is carried around under his hat.

Four Bands To Spark Memorial Day Parade

A military detachment from Fort Devens, four bands and groups of veterans and municipal officials as well as Scout and Camp Fire units will parade Monday to honor this country's war dead.

The parade will move off at 9:30 a.m. from the corner of Florence and Elm Sts. and proceed down Elm, onto Main and South to Chestnut, Whittier and Memorial Auditorium at Andover Junior High School.

Following services, the column will proceed down Bartlet to Punchard and out Main to the Phillips Academy Memorial where academy officials will conduct the traditional service, assisted by veterans. From here the parade will move down School St. and onto Central, disbanding at the Baptist Church.

Earlier in the day, memorial services will be held at these other locations: 7:30 a.m. American Legion Lot, Spring Grove Cemetery and at 7:50 a.m. Grand Army of the Republic lot; 8:15 a.m. Old South Church Cemetery; 8:30 a.m. Memorial Hall Library.

Rep. Albert Pettoruto will be speaker for the Memorial Auditorium Service. He is to be introduced by Philip K. Allen, chairman of the Board of Selectmen. Also on the program will be two Andover High School students, William Arrand and Judith A. Kane, who will present Lincoln's "Gettysburg Address" and the poem, "In Flanders' Field."

Participating in other portions of the service will be Rev. James A. Wenzel, O.S.A. of St. Augustine's Church, Post 8 Legion Commander Benjamin Brown, VFW Comm. Cecil Garrod and Mrs. Garrod of the VFW auxiliary, Rev. J. Allyn Bradford of Free Christian Church, Larry Mazell of Andover High School, the combined high school bands and a veterans' firing squad.

Cemetery Lots To Cost More

Spring Grove Cemetery trustees have revised the schedule rates for lots and services effective June 1, making approximately a 50 percent upward adjustment, according to the town manager.

Noting that non-residents will be charged an additional $100 per lot, the trustees list these charges: ten graves, $650; eight graves, $550; six graves, $450; four graves $300; two graves, $150; one grave, $75.

In each case, these fees are split with $50 less than half going to the town and the balance going into the perpetual care fund.

Lots may be purchased on a partial payment plan so long as half is paid in cash and the balance over the period of one year in four equal notes with interest on the unpaid balance computed at six percent.

Fees for the opening of graves range from $10 to $40 and Saturday interments run an additional $25.

Two Memorial Day Reminders

Gold Star Mothers living in Andover are invited to ride in the Memorial Day parade Monday and are asked to call Elmer S. Ober at the Veterans Office in Town Hall to arrange for transportation. Mothers wishing it may have portal to portal transportation.

In addition, Ober asks residents who know of a veteran's grave not yet decorated with an American Flag to report its location to his office. Veterans organizations have placed some 800 new flags on graves in preparation for Memorial Day and would like to correct any oversights in advance of the official observance.

Miss Ebba Peterson, who lives in Ocala, Fla. and Mrs. Herbert P. Carter, were unable to attend. Frank Nelson of Athol, overseer of the Massachusetts State Grange, addressed the meeting and a youth group from Friendship Pomona Grange entertained.

Red Cross Seeks More Fresh Blood

The Red Cross is holding a Bloodmobile at South Church June 4 from 12:45 to 6:45 p.m. to stock its Blood Center in preparation for summertime needs.

The community service organization reports that demands are heavy during the months when Americans are vacationing, particularly because of highway accidents.

Transportation to and from the Bloodmobile will be provided donors who call the RC chapter house. Baby sitters will be available at the church.
